Overview

Access to justice is a cornerstone of a healthy and progressive state. Since 2013, the Legal Aid Society (LAS), a not-for-profit non-governmental organization, has worked to empower vulnerable individuals and communities by increasing their knowledge of the justice system and strengthening their ability to access it. Drawing on its extensive experience in delivering accessible, effective, and expeditious justice, LAS works with various stakeholders across the justice system to enhance their capacity to address citizens' grievances and resolve conflicts in a fair and just manner.

Under the thematic area of Freedom of Religious Belief, LAS is implementing the initiative, Protecting and Promoting Religious Freedom in Pakistan, to safeguard the legal and constitutional rights of at-risk religious communities. The project advances community-based legal empowerment through paralegal training, legal awareness programs, and strengthened engagement with Criminal Justice Sector (CJS) institutions. It focuses on empowering Religious Minority Communities (RMCs) by enhancing legal literacy, improving access to justice, and increasing awareness of socio-economic support mechanisms. The initiative also fosters community-based support networks that connect RMCs with social security schemes and microfinance opportunities, helping to build socio-economic resilience. In addition, the project supports evidence-based research and advocacy to address systemic gaps and promote reforms grounded in the rule of law. Currently, the project is operational in Dadu, Hyderabad, and Sanghar in Sindh, as well as Multan, Khanewal, and Muzaffargarh in Punjab, with the objective of ensuring that no law-abiding citizen is denied timely justice or essential support due to marginalization or institutional barriers.

The Leadership

Access to justice is closely linked to access to information. When people know where to go, who to contact, and what support is available, they are far better positioned to protect their rights and secure their livelihoods. I have seen repeatedly how the absence of clear information can become a barrier in itself, particularly for religious minority communities.

This Social Security Directory is a practical effort to address that gap. By bringing together key social security departments, welfare organizations, and financial services in one place, it makes existing systems easier to navigate and more responsive to real needs. In my work on legal empowerment and legal facilitation, I have learned how essential such clarity is for meaningful access to justice.

I hope this directory serves as a useful resource for communities, practitioners, and institutions, and supports stronger, more inclusive systems of social protection.

Justice Arif Hussain Khilji
